According to the CDC, "Coronaviruses are generally thought to be spread from person-to-person through respiratory droplets. Currently there is no evidence to support transmission of COVID-19 associated with food."

Every day, we hold ourselves to the highest cleanliness and health standards that are designed to maintain a safe and healthy environment in our restaurant. In addition, we remain vigilant in learning more about this disease by monitoring developments closely and keeping informed of additional recommendations from DHEC and other public health agencies.

Ms. Rose's, is committed to doing what is right to protect our customers and associates, and to do our part in preventing the transmission of Coronavirus.
